

Dear colleagues,

Let me, on behalf of the MedicaTour team and my own behalf, thank the organizers of the Russian Health Care Week 2017 for this valuable and relevant event. The health of the nation is the most important thing and one of the priorities of this country's domestic policy.

I especially would like to bring attention to the first edition of the MedTravelExpo exhibition. All those working in the medical tourism industry have been long waiting for this event. This trade show and its supporting events will help to learn more about the latest health care trends and innovative technologies, share experience, network and establish new interesting and beneficial contacts.

The main task of MedTravelExpo is to launch development of the medical tourism in Russia and attract as many foreign patients as possible. It will enhance this country's prestige all over the world and bring profits to the budget.
